

Authorization for Consumption of Biological Evidence Samples

This authorization for evidence consumption, also known as Permission to Consume (PTC), is for evidence samples that are expected to contain very small amounts of DNA. By signing this form, the submitting agency acknowledges that testing may result in the consumption of a biological evidence sample, leaving no sample available for later retesting. In the case listed below, the Department of Justice, Bureau of Forensic Services (BFS) is hereby authorized to consume the evidence, as necessary, in an attempt to obtain a probative DNA profile.
